In behalf of the Faculty he desired to thank the students for their uniform good order and zeal in study. To those students who expected to return he would say, that they had the power, and upon them rested the horted them to unite in being co-workers with the Faculty in keeping up the high standard of morals as well as of scholar ship which has hitherto characterized the University. These who go out now to the stern duties of life will have peculiar temptation to despair or to hate. He exhorted them to resist the temptation and to use the power here acquired to inspire others with heart and hope; to be true alike to the memory of the dead and the duties of the living. He closed by appropriately and feelingly reminding them, in the language of Foster, that they must meet up yonder, as coming from a battle-field. Col. Venable was loudly applauded and cheered as

There was now an intermission, during which time was afforded for rest and refreshment. At the close of the intermission the Society of Alumni and their in-Marye (president) called the society to order, and expressed the great pleasure with which they welcomed one who comes from his distant home to speak to them to-day, and greeted a brother who has reflected honor upon the Alumni by using well his talents and acquirements for the good of his country. NORTHERN ICE.—We have contracted for a fall supply of the celebrated KENNE-BEC RIVER ICE, and are now receiving from the above river ice twenty inches in thickness, clear as crystal, and hard as flint—superior to any ice coming into this market, not excepting the pure Boston ice. We are the only dealers receiving this ce obtated ice, so universally known as the purest and best in the country. We are prepared at all times to furnish ice of the above quality by the cargo, capal-boat, or car load, and we give special attention on all occasions to the packing and shipment of the same. City outloners furnished on the most reasonable terms.
